Thank you to everyone who voted for me at the recent Surrey County Council elections, says RICHARD WALSH, and I pledge myself to work for all the residents in Shepperton, Laleham, and Charlton Village, to make our area a better place to live.

I now plan to continue the work on all the matters which concern people including, fighting the Watersplash gravel raising application, opposing the gasification plant at the Eco Park, and improve the maintenance of the roads and pavements.

Having gone round nearly the whole of the division knocking on doors and canvassing Richard is very aware that speeding lorries and inconsiderate parking are two major concern's which he will be working on with the local police and the parking team.

Councillors Robert Watts, Robin Sider and Vivienne Leighton in the soon to open new Well-Being Centre, a joint project between Surrey, Spelthorne and the 3rd Sector.

Spelthorne is also expanding the High Needs provision to provide transport and additional activities so those with mobility difficulties can now come to the centre any day Monday - Friday.

Robin, Vivienne and Robert are using their community grant to fund artwork for the walls. The pictures will be painted by local artists.

Cllr Leighton said, "We are delighted Spelthorne is again investing in supporting frail, older and those less mobile in our community. This is an active decision to support these residents as Boroughs are not responsible for providing such services."

This helps people who live in their own homes.

Congratulation Richard

Cllrs. Mary Madams and Richard Smith-Ainsley have been very happy to support Richard in his re-election campaign, and are delighted that he won.

Photographed in Laleham Park Mary said "We will be working with Richard on many projects in the Laleham and Shepperton Green ward where County and Borough collaboration is needed.

This includes measures to alleviate the flooding problems in Laleham Village and the proposed Eco Park at Charlton Lane."

Mary and Richard Smith-Ainsley will both be involved in the proposals for the regeneration of Laleham Park. This historic park will have to be sensitively improved without losing its character.

Draft EU referendum bill

David Cameron has said that if he is Prime Minister, there will be an in-out referendum in the next Parliament.

And as the Prime Minister has said, in this Parliament we will look at all options to underline the fact that our commitment to the referendum is absolute.

That's why the Conservative Party has published a draft bill to legislate in this Parliament for an in-out referendum before the end of 2017.

We will be working with James Wharton as he brings our draft bill before Parliament as a private member's bill.

We know there are MPs in other parties who also believe that the British people should be given a choice on our country's membership of the EU, and so we urge them to back the bill.

But if other parties do not back it, people will be able to see that only the Conservative Party is offering an in-out referendum and that the two other mainstream parties, Labour and the Liberal Democrats, oppose an in-out referendum.
